SOFT SKILL DEVELOPMENT SESSION

A session on Soft Skill Development was organised by Head of the Department of English, Patna University, Prof. Shanker Dutt on 27/02/2018 at 12 Noon. The session began with a demonstration of how the variance in proximity with the people bring difference in the behavioral pattern of an individual or 'Proxemics', with the help of student volunteers. Prof. Dutt took this demonstration as an example to explain how an individual behaves in a particular kind of company based not only the radius of separation between the person and his company but also, on the level of comfort the person shares with the company.

Prof. Dutt also talked about the importance of 'Chronemics' which is concerned with one's attitude towards the utilization of time. To respect time is a favourable trait when it comes to professional as well as social promotion of an individual.

He went on to explain that it is natural for a person to get nervous when he/she newly steps into a professional sphere, and to deal with this and one's ~~not~~ social interaction on day to day basis, Soft Skill Development becomes critical to individual growth. To link Soft Skill Development merely to professional sphere is to have a very limited vision of it. Our everyday

Interaction out of Professional sphere happen to play an imperative role in our overall growth and soft skills come handy in such interactions as well.

The session helped the students learn little tips of communication, social and professional skills that would help them tread their path of career as well as life in general.

The session was attended by 40 students of second semester of Department of English, Patna University.
